Dear Friend:

I decided to drop you a line and enclose a copy of the form letter we are sending out, so you can see what we are doing.

First of all, we have been given a pair of Joe Louis's gloves to be auctioned off to the one buying the biggest bond. Do you think the folks will be interested in this? I would like to see some one who is interested in The Elks get them, so The Elks could have them on display. Do you know, anyone who is planning to buy some big bonds, maybe we could get them to bid at the ball park.

I am also going to have a pair or two of nylon stockings to give away, and Joe Bostic thinks he can get an order for a tire or two. Anyway I think the Joe Louis gloves alone will be a big attraction. What do you think?

We as a race have not done much organized bond buying, and as a result a lot of people do not know how big a contribution we have made. I hope we will realize enough from the ballgame to go on record as making a worth while contribution. If there is anything you want to discuss with me, give me a ring and I will come over whenever you say. I hope you are feeling well.

Very Truly Yours
